The Levant Herald states that the Turkish army at Rustchuk is greatly dissatisfied with the Commander-in-Chief, ANDUL KERIM, who, according to the statement of the soldiers, is unfit for his position by age and infirmity. The dissatisfaction has become so general that the Turkish soldiers have signed a petition to the Government asking that he shall be put one side to make room for a stronger man.

It is said that the Russian Government has a settled dislike of newspaper correspondents, and has steadily refused permission for the representative of any European journal to remain at army headquarters. For all that, the correspondents manage to be present when anything of consequence happens, and the reader of The Tribune is informed each morning of the events of the preceding day with approximate correctness.

A pair of Parisian editors have been made to feel that the French Press laws are not so liberal and indulgent as to tolerate the practice of violent and abusive attacks upon which some of the minor journals depend for their success. The editors of the Radical and Reformist have each been sentenced to pay a fine of 2,000 francs and to be imprisoned for two months—the former for insulting the army, and the latter for printing intemperate articles subversive of social order.

Bulgaria, which a few days ago was on the point of proclaiming her independence, now appears much perplexed, not feeling certain as to the policy which will best comport with her interests. There is undoubtedly a strong Austrian influence at work in the Bulgarian Capital, and while PRINCE CHARLES is eager to openly espouse the cause of Russia as against the Forte, the Chambers have a majority favoring a more conservative course. Under existing circumstances, it will hardly be possible for the provinces to postpone a formal decision much longer.

In a fight between the Russian shore batteries and the Turkish iron-clads in the Danube at Rostchuk yesterday, one of the largest of the monitors, with a crew of 300 on board, and bearing also the Turkish Commander HAMAN BEY, was struck by a shell and instantly sank. The cable dispatches give no account of the loss of life, but there is little room for doubt that the iron-clads were severely wounded in the encounter. The battery that did the effective work was masked by a vineyard, and in an hour from the time it opened fire upon the monitors the big three-masted was at the bottom of the Danube.

A war among the coal monopolists is one of the gratifying possibilities of the near future, and with it a general competition such as has not been known for years among the coal-mining corporations. By a combination which has hitherto borne all the shocks and strains of the times, they have been able to control absolutely the market of anthracite, but there are signs of a falling-out which, if it comes about, will completely disrupt the monopoly, and make bitter enemies and rivals of the great companies which have heretofore acted in concert for their mutual protection and common interest. Threats of a vigorous policy of competition are discovered in the action yesterday of the Directors of the Pennsylvania Coal Company in conferring upon their executive officers full power to act as circumstances may require, and a refreshing season of cheap coal is among the probabilities.

The debate in the British House of Commons on the Gladstone resolutions proceeded yesterday in a spirited manner on the Liberal side. The Liberals justly claim the credit of having been instrumental in effecting a change in the Ministerial programme; that the introduction and discussion of the resolutions offered by Mr. GLADSTONE and subsequently modified so as to prevent the threatened split in the ranks of the opposition have been the direct means of holding in check the war party, and of limiting the declarations of the Government to a policy of strict neutrality and close watchfulness over British interests. To have made England a neutral instead of an ally of Turkey will be of itself a grand political victory for the Liberals, and if they succeed in this, as it now appears they may, the cause of peace and humanity will owe them a debt which the world will recognize.

The “coincidence of temptation, and opportunity,” is what sits a large number of the clerks and employees of the New York Custom-House whose positions are such as to render their services valuable in helping to defraud the revenue. Coincidences of this kind have been so numerous and of such regular occurrence as to have made that institution a by-word for all that is corrupt and rotten in the public service, and the Government Commission engaged in investigating the abuses has undertaken to discover where fraud can be checked and extravagance restricted. They are taking testimony on the subject, and among others Mr. A. B. COXON, Naval Officer at New York, has given his views in a letter which is included in the dispatches of that morning. He recommends greater care in the selection of persons to fill the positions exposed to temptation, the enforcement of such discipline and surveillance as would reduce to a minimum the opportunity for temptation, and prompt and rigorous punishment in every case of dishonesty or impropriety discovered.

Our dispatches this morning give a detailed account of the terrible casualty at Rockford yesterday involving the death of eleven and the wounding of ten men, all of them employed in and about the new Court-House in process of construction. It appears to have been a case of criminal inconstancy and negligence somewhere, the walls of a new building suddenly crumbling beneath a weight that they were never suitably constructed to bear, and burying in the ruins a score of people. The fearful responsibility rests between the architect and the builder, and one or the other must bear the burden of the cruel slaughter of life and the destruction of property. The builder claims to have followed implicitly the details and specifications of the architect in the construction of the walls which supported the heavy dome; and the architect asks for a suspension of public opinion until the facts can be definitely developed. This is the second case of architectural manslaughter that has occurred within ten days, the falling in of the roof of the New York Post-Office being the result of a crime, or of a blunder amounting to a crime, of the same character as that which has plunged the beautiful city of Rockford into horror and grief.

THE FIRST TWO WEEKS OF THE WAR.
The first two weeks of the Russo-Turkish army at Rustchuk is greatly dissatisfied with the Commander-in-Chief, ANDUL KERIM, who, according to the statement of the soldiers, is unfit for his position by age and infirmity. The dissatisfaction has become so general that the Turkish soldiers have signed a petition to the Government asking that he shall be put one side to make room for a stronger man.

As the matter now stands, the State-House investigation, after all the time spent upon it, and after all the evidence accumulated to prove the incompetency and profligacy of the Commissioners (which was sufficiently manifest from the single fact that they had exhausted the constitutional fund of $1,500,000 and demanded $700,000 more to complete the building), has degenerated into a mere farce. The Senate Investigating Committee, though letting the Commissioners off much more lightly than they deserved, and shouldering a large part of the blame on a dead architect, his senior partner being still alive, were still compelled to join unanimously in a condemnation of the extra-charge and inferiority of the work, and recommended that the Board of Commissioners be abolished and the architects dismissed.

The President has withdrawn the troops from the South Carolina and Louisiana State-Houses. As a consequence, Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, one of the claimants for the office of Governor of South Carolina, retired and gathered up his personal property, and, with his family, left the State and has engaged in a practice of the law in one of the Northern cities. His associates, the other carpet-bag State officers, either resigned or formally withdrew from all claim to the offices they held. The Legislature convened and reorganized itself on a new political basis, and the State Government, which succeeded that of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, has gone into active operation in all its departments. In Louisiana, as soon as the troops were withdrawn from the State-House, Mr. PARKER disbanded his body-guard, and, on the 3d inst. their advance was in Rockford. On the 4th, a portion of the left wing had pulled up to a point opposite Silistria, and on the same day the Turkish gunboats commanded to bombard Rethi, on the Galatz bend of the Danube, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. The Turks had been engaged in a combat with the Danube flotilla, the narrow strip of Northeastern Bulgaria between Rethi and Silistria.

In Louisiana, as soon as the troops were withdrawn from the State-House, Mr. PARKER disbanded his body-guard, and, on the 3d inst. their advance was in Rockford. On the 4th, a portion of the left wing had pulled up to a point opposite Silistria, and on the same day the Turkish gunboats commanded to bombard Rethi, on the Galatz bend of the Danube, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. The Turks had been engaged in a combat with the Danube flotilla, the narrow strip of Northeastern Bulgaria between Rethi and Silistria.

The President has withdrawn the troops from the South Carolina and Louisiana State-Houses. As a consequence, Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, one of the claimants for the office of Governor of South Carolina, retired and gathered up his personal property, and, with his family, left the State and has engaged in a practice of the law in one of the Northern cities. His associates, the other carpet-bag State officers, either resigned or formally withdrew from all claim to the offices they held. THE HOME.

COUNSEL WANTED.
For some Solomon to teach the way.
In which a girl with wealth shall pass the day.
Whose school-days have gone by, who does not have care.

To practice music or to frizz her hair;
With no great taste, but not yet too fond of dress;
An honest-hearted girl, with no pretense;
To grime, but with practical good-sense.
To be married, till, or even before marriage;
With no such dash, but with enough to do.
There's charity, but then I chance to know,
Immersed in wealth, she's little to bestow.
She has her time, but its small pleasure here,
This evening comes, though not the hour;
She's not to know, "would shame her
wealth."

To even form a garnet for herself.
And then the seamstress, as I heard her tell,
Cruel all such work, but does twice as well;
Wishes to be a dame. She has the excuse
To eat and drink, nor he of any use.
Indeed, I often pitied her myself,
Though like afflictions never spoiled my health:
My hands have been too fully occupied;
But she's a dame—she's not to know, "would shame her
wealth."

My Dearest Pit:

"Don't think me quite a fool:
For I've been to school, and at school;
And more I mean than ever made a friend.

What shall I say that may comprehend
My loneliness? For strange it must appear,
So lame and so weak our circle here.

Of gracious, doting friends, there is none,

Least of all, a woman who loves a home.

Brings a home, "to proper to suppose."

With so much good there is no lack of beauty.

Then their presumption—think of the disgrace,

At first come to me, and then to them.

I've given up years of these nice young men!

That you may judge their number, truth to speak,

I might be married at least once a week,

If at Salt Lake. No, that could not do.

Being in New York, I might be married,

At least once a month. Of such poor stuff,

One husband surely would be quite enough.

Now, to be serious: you can't indeed

Know what a wretched, worthless life I lead.

I weary of myself that degree.

Cruel all such work, but does twice as well;

What shall I say that may comprehend
My loneliness? For strange it must appear,

So lame and so weak our circle here.

Special Correspondence of The Tribune.

SPRINGFIELD, May 11.—To the lasting shame and disgrace of the public men of the State of Illinois, the Springfield State House is now records a chapter of infamy. The Legislature, which Illinois has just undergone, has been as searching as the one which exiled Connally, Genet, Oakley Hall, Harvey, and consigned Tweed to a felon's cell, and yet the houses of the Springfield Ring Lord is about the Capitol with insolence and effrontery.

AN UNWITTING CHAPTER OF THE RING.

The combination formed at the outset for the purpose of levying upon the people's money was extensive and brilliant in scope. The most active was in its representation of legal interests, the power of the State Building Fund. Don Morrison, Don has always been the King of the lobby, and in the days of special legislation, of odorous memory, he formed the new State-House Ring. To give it financial character, he engaged the services of Gurney, of Boston, to draw up the ring. It might have been in the rural districts, Hambleton and Vandever were made Directors; and for legal scholars, Jim Robinson, Jack Smith, and the two killed at Lemont, Phil Wadsworth, and old Jim Beveridge were taken in by Morrison as the slick ones.

THE RING WAS THE ORIGINAL STATE-HOUSE RING, which Don Morrison has dredged for tandem for 12 years. Morrison is an architect friend in St. Louis, by the name of E. C. Strong, who has made a name for himself in Boston. Coaches from the position of Supervising Architect, but he "put up" too liberally, and held on. Finding that he could not get Barnett in, Don Morrison and Barnett prevailed upon the Legislature to take a direct course. And then Acting Supervising Architects of the new State-House. This draftsmen was Alfred H. Phalenard. Francis A. Drew is a son-in-law of Barnett's. Now this was the ring, every one of whom has fattened off of the State-House appropriation.

All this winter the storms have beat in through the skeleton house. The Commissioners swear they have $7,000 to their credit; $2,000 would close the sum, yet these Commissioners hang on to the $2,000, and the $2,000 will be the sum that will be secure. When the Senate Committee made its report last week, and public feeling can high over the $2,000, the Legislature, which had been re-elected on the 1st of December, 1876, and 1877, and the last day
